Admits 4 U. S. Pilots Killed In Invasion

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has acknowledged that during the heat of the 1961 Cuban invasion several Americans volunteered to fly combat missions and four lost their lives.

Thus the Senate's Republican leader, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, got no argument from the administration's chief Senate spokesman on his charge Monday that four Americans had been shot down in the Bay of Pigs fiasco.

Mansfield, who said that in this case, he was speaking only for himself, added some details in his statement.

"It is known that a few experienced American aviators were employed to train Cuban pilots, navigators and radio operators. Because of exhaustion of Cuban pilots, several of these Americans volunteered to fly combat missions. Apparently a decision was made by those directing operations to accept this offer. Several planes were attacked and four of these Americans lost their lives," Mansfield said.

Shortly before Mansfield's statement, the Castro government sent a stiff note dealing with a more recent scrap—last week's attack on a U.S. shrimp boat.

Cuba denied that its planes had fired on the boat and then counter-charged that two U.S. Air Force jets machine-gunned Cuban territory early this month, endangering the lives of Russian and Cuban oil workers.

The U.S. State Department termed the denial propaganda.

Dirksen said in an interview that he had uncovered evidence of the deaths of the four fliers in his one-man investigation of the U.S.-backed invasion which collapsed under the fire of Fidel Castro's forces.

Neither Dirksen nor Mansfield gave any names but the incident was strikingly similar to one disclosed May 4, 1961 — about two weeks after the assault.

At a news conference in Birmingham, Ala., a Miami Springs, Fla., lawyer announced that four

Students in N.J. Boycott Their School

By DAVID MAZARELLA

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — A boycott of the predominantly Negro Lincoln Elementary School began today and school authorities said almost half the pupils enrolled were absent.

There were 230 pupils absent, out of an enrolled 498, Principal Leroy McCloud announced.

The figure was well below the goal of the Englewood Movement, the integrationist group that is backing the boycott.

There are about eight white pupils enrolled in the school and at least six of them were present this morning, Dr. Mark R. Shedd, the school superintendent, said. The planners of the boycott have set up classes privately to continue instruction for the children who stay out.

Seven adults pickets outside the school marched with signs for about an hour in 15-degree cold. Vincent K. Tibbs, a Negro city councilman, led the pickets.

At a news conference called in the school building, Shedd said no boycotting was in evidence at the Liberty school, which also has a large Negro enrollment.

Shedd said the Board of Education planned no immediate action against those who stayed out.

He declined to say specifically what measures might be taken against parents, but mentioned the state's compulsory attendance rule.

If the children were to remain permanently in private schools, however, the board would have no jurisdiction, he said.

Shedd pointed out that three petitions concerning the racial composition of Englewood schools are before the state commissioner of education.

One reiterated the board's position that attendance at Lincoln was determined solely by existing school district boundaries. One said there is no design.

Russell Major, an official of the Englewood Movement, said the purpose of the boycott was to force the state to step into the controversy.

The State Department of Education is to open hearings on the issue April 1, Negro leaders claim the hearings will be a stalling tactic.

A year ago, Englewood was accused of maintaining segregated schools by Negro parents who filed a complaint in federal court. U.S. Dist. Court Judge Anthony T. Augelli ruled last July that they had not exhausted state administrative remedies.

About one-fourth of Englewood's population of 27,000 is Negro.

Russians Find Prehistoric Vertebrates

LONDON (AP) — Russian scientists say they have brought two prehistoric tritons—vertebrates resembling lizards—back to life. They lay frozen solid for 5,000 years in Siberia, Moscow radio said today.

The story of the tritons, the broadcast said, suggests that space travelers might be put in a sort of deep freeze to make long journeys without the encumbrance of huge amounts of supplies.

The broadcast gave this account: "Some time ago Soviet geologists found something resembling a lizard at a depth of about 25 feet in the frozen ground of northern Siberia."

"It revived after being kept at room temperature for some time. Scientists finally classified it as a four-toed triton, one of the oldest and most primitive orders of tailed amphibians that inhabited the earth in the Mesozoic era (the dinosaur age)."

"Judging by the state of the earth in which it was found, biologists concluded that the triton had been asleep for about 5,000 years."

"On awakening the creature behaved exactly as it had thousands of years ago. It ran around, ate and slept. It was not afraid of people, willingly eating wild berries, flies and mosquitoes out of their hands."

"It died after three weeks. 'Another triton was found frozen about 13 feet underground. This one also revived and lived practically all summer.'"

Can't Determine Correct English

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Dr. Bergen Evans, an English professor at Northwestern University, said here Monday night that language usage is "capricious and illogical, but it is tyrannical" in determining correct English for later generations.

He was the third speaker in the "Evenings at Eight" series at Little Rock University.

A language is whatever those who use it make of it at the moment, Evans said.

"The severest penalties are visited upon anyone who deviates the slightest from usage's arbitrary dictates, no matter how unreasonable they may be," he said.

"Habitual practice, however, does not make anything a standard of speech."

He said it is up to English teachers to study the standards and make sure that students are aware of them.

Publishers, Strikers Due to Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Publishers of New York City's nine closed newspapers and striking printers meet face to face late today in the first joint negotiations since Feb. 11.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who has been acting as mediator, called for the meeting in a last-ditch effort to negotiate a settlement. If he fails, he plans to take on the role of umpire and offer settlement terms of his own.

Such a suggested settlement would not be binding on either striking Local 6 of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union or the publishers of the major dailies which vanished from the streets 81 days ago.

Wagner, who intervened in the contractual dispute a month ago today, was in touch with both sides Monday although no formal discussions were held.

In reference to today's peace talks, Bertram A. Powers, president of Local 6, commented: "This only means that the publishers, after 24 hours of deliberation, have agreed to our suggestion that we make one more effort to reach settlement before the mayor makes a public recommendation."

There was no comment from the publishers.

Any settlement recommendation by Wagner has been given indirect assurance of support by three nonstriking newspaper unions who urged him to recommend a settlement in accordance with a suggestion from President Kennedy at a news conference last Thursday. The President said both sides should submit their deadlocked differences to independent determination of some kind.

Some 20,000 newspaper people have been put out of their regular jobs here since Dec. 8 when the printers struck four of the dailies and the other five shut down voluntarily.

In Cleveland, Ohio, another 3,000 newspaper people have been off their regular assignments since last Nov. 29 at the start of the walkout of the first of five unions to strike the Plain Dealer and the Press & News. One of those five has since come to terms but the other four are still bargaining for new contracts.

In the 88th day of the Cleveland shutdown, considerable progress was reported by management concerning negotiations with the stereotypers union, one of five which did not strike the two newspapers.

Arctic Air Has Moved to State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cold mass of arctic air whistled into Arkansas last night and this morning, dropping temperatures into the teens and 20s in the northern part of the state and into the 30s in the south.

The Weather Bureau said the cold air probably would hang on the rest of the day, but that a high pressure area moving in from the midwest was expected to bring soothing southerly winds and higher temperatures by Wednesday.

The forecast called for partly cloudy and not so cold Wednesday. Highs today were expected to range from the mid 20s north to the 30s south. Lows of 15 to 25 were forecast for tonight.

Rainfall during the 24-hour period ending today at 6 a.m. varied from one-quarter to one-half inch, with a few places reporting one-tenth of an inch or less.

No precipitation was expected tonight.

Respiratory, Flu Continue to Take Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Influenza and respiratory ailments continue to take a heavy toll. The U.S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center at Atlanta said Asian flu has been confirmed now in 16 states and the District of Columbia.

In one North Carolina area, where flu reached epidemic proportions, there were indications that the outbreak has passed its peak.

School officials in Wilkes County, N.C., reported Monday that the number of absentees is declining and the county's 28 schools have been reopened. They were closed Feb. 15 because of flu.

Connecticut and Iowa were added to the list of states where Asian flu has been found. Shifted from the list of indefinite to Asian diagnosis were South Carolina, Delaware and New Jersey.

Arkansas and Missouri were added to the list of states where Continued on Page Two

Consolidation Bill Is Not Suggested

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The House Education Committee crippled a school consolidation study bill by amendments today and then put a "do not pass" recommendation on it.

One amendment, by Montgomery County Rep. Ole Maddox, would permit any school district to exempt itself from the scope of the consolidation studies. Another would permit a county to reject the study called for by the bill.

The bill, by Sen. Clarence Bell of Parkin, called for creation of consolidation study commissions in each county. These commissions would draw up a school reorganization plan which would be subject to approval by a popular vote.

The committee recommended passage of a Senate bill to allow Arkansas A&M college for Negroes to establish a junior college branch in Southwest Arkansas.

The House Public Health Committee shied away from a proposed bill to set up a system of air pollution control in Arkansas.

The State Water Pollution Control Commission asked the committee to sponsor the bill but the committee decided to ask the legislative council to study the problem and make recommendations to the 1965 general assembly.

This committee recommended against passage of a bill by Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs to give the Health Department authority to require that sandwiches, pie, and certain other edibles offered for sale be properly refrigerated.

The House Judiciary committee decided to kill a Sunday sales restriction bill. It voted to wait until March 4, the date on which the committee must release the bill, and send the bill back to the House floor with a "do not pass" recommendation.

The bill was disabled last week by amendments adopted on the House floor. Its backers could move to withdraw the bill from committee before March 4, but this is considered unlikely.

Distillery Shares Are Exchanged

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Hoyt R. Pyle, executive director of the state Teacher Retirement System, said Monday it has exchanged its $71,000 investment in a distillery for shares in an electric utility company.

A few weeks ago, he said, the stock in Joseph E. Seagram distillery was sold and proceeds were reinvested in Arkansas Power & Light Co. debentures.

Pyle said the purchase of the Seagram stock was inadvertent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Venus, the mysterious lady of the universe, has her grand unveiling today.

The secrets Mariner II gathered in its historic Dec. 14 flight past the shrouded planet will be made public at an afternoon news conference.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the information received from Mariner on the planet's temperatures has been decoded and analyzed.

NASA declined to comment in advance on reports that temperatures at or near the planet's surface were found to be between 300 and 400 degrees.

Previously, earth-based temperature measurements of Venus indicated near-surface temperatures of 615 degrees, and temperatures of 38 below zero in the upper atmosphere of the planet.

This would indicate temperature maximums far in excess of the boiling point of water. Lead melts at 600 degrees.

James E. Webb, NASA administrator, told the House Space Committee Monday that details of Mariner's discoveries about Venus had been withheld until scientists could present the information in a form so he could "Sign my name to it for publication."

Mariner, launched last Aug. 27, gathered data continuously on its 180 million mile journey to Venus, with four devices to obtain information on magnetic fields, particle radiation, cosmic dust and solar plasma or gas clouds.

Then, during a 42-minute approach to within 21,594 miles of Venus, two special pieces of equipment—a microwave radiometer and an infrared radiometer—probed Venus for surface and atmospheric temperatures. They also checked on the structure of its cloud layer.

This information was relayed 36 million miles to earth. Mariner then sped on toward the Sun. Radio contact with the 447-pound craft ended Jan. 4, when it was 54.3 million miles out in space.

Columnist Enters Innocent Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Igor Cassini, high society columnist who writes under the name Cholly Knickerbocker, pleaded innocent today to charges he failed to register as a publicity agent for the late Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo.

R. Paul Englander, a New York attorney indicted with Cassini earlier this month, also pleaded innocent.

U.S. District Judge Matthew F. McGuire set trial for May 13. Both men were released under $1,000 bail.

Cassini writes a society gossip column for the New York Journal-American and other newspapers. The Journal-American has given him leave of absence until the case is concluded.

Cassini and Englander are charged with failing to register under the 1938 Foreign Agents Registration act while they promoted the Trujillo regime in this country.

Cassini is the younger brother of Oleg Cassini, who designs clothes for the wife of President Kennedy.

Rockefeller Ouster Bill Slated for Vote

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A new effort to get a roll call sounding of the Arkansas House's feeling about Winthrop Rockefeller is expected today.

Perry County Rep. Paul Van Dalsen again blocked action on a pro-Rockefeller resolution Monday and introduced a bill to force Rockefeller to choose between the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission and the Republican Party.

The bill which touched off all the furor about Rockefeller remained under wraps Monday. This is the measure Mississippi County Reps. L. H. Autry and Walter Day said a week ago that they would introduce. It still has not been dropped in the House hopper.

Autry turned aside newsmen's questions about the bill with a terse "no comment" Monday but he finally relented and said he still plans to introduce it.

He would not discuss, however, reports that some legislators who signed the bill have revoked or are trying to revoke their pledges.

Autry and Day had a difference of opinion over the weekend as to how many signatures were on the bill. Autry indicated there were more than 51, the number needed to pass it. Day said there were less.

Half a dozen representatives, none of whom wanted to be quoted said Monday they had changed their minds about voting against Rockefeller.

Van Dalsen left no doubt about his feeling. He bitterly attacked Rockefeller in a 30-minute filibuster that used up the morning hour and tied the resolution up.

The Van Dalsen bill would stipulate that no officer of an organized political party could be an AIDC member. Rockefeller, AIDC chairman since the agency was created in 1961, was elected Republican national committeeman for Arkansas in 1961 and took over leadership of the GOP in the state.

The Autry-Day bill would abolish the present AIDC and provide for reappointment of a new commission by Gov. Orval E. Faubus. This would amount to a mandate to Faubus not to rename Rockefeller.

Faubus got into the controversy for the first time in answering a remark made over the weekend by former Gov. Sid McMath who said the administration was behind the anti-Rockefeller move.

Faubus retorted that Rockefeller got special treatment from McMath when McMath was governor. Faubus stuck by his statement even after newsmen reminded him that Rockefeller did not come to the state until about six months after McMath left office.

McMath termed the statement "an unfortunate lapse of memory" on the part of the governor.

Battle of Ballots in Minnesota

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The tense, painstaking job of one-by-one arguments on disputed ballots in the Minnesota gubernatorial election continued today with Democrat Karl Rolvaag holding an unofficial lead of 12 votes.

Rolvaag started a recount action after several post-election court battles and ruling by the State Canvassing Board that Republican Gov. Elmer L. Anderson had won by 142 votes in the Nov. 6 election.

In opening testimony Monday, attorneys for both men conceded changes in the first three of 24 stacks of disputed ballots that reduced Rolvaag's post-recount margin from 133 to 12.

Even this will vary considerably as attorneys agree to toss out certain ballots and will be in doubt until the three-judge panel decides in the whole gamut of disputed ballots and charges of election irregularities.

In Monday's action — which involved no decision by the court — Rolvaag lost 119 in the first class of disputed ballots, which involved double marks by voters. Ballots showed marks for either Rolvaag or Anderson plus a vote for William Braatz, a third-party candidate representing the Industrial Government party.

Rolvaag lost 10 more in the second category, involving dual voting for Anderson and his Democratic opponent. Eight Rolvaag votes were subtracted in the third class, where one side claims the ballot and the other side contends it should not be counted for either.

Rolvaag, who had said earlier he would appear to lose ground in the first few categories of disputed ballots, still predicts victory. Republicans hailed the early going as a trend.

In the first three piles of ballots, 91 were turned over to the court when attorneys could not agree. Of these, 39 are claimed by Rolvaag and 52 by Anderson.

Attorneys have estimated that the three judges will have to examine and decide on between 1,000 and 1,500 ballots before this phase of the recount is completed.

Scheduled later are trials on alleged irregularities and disputes about partially spoiled ballots, he judges have said they may be ready to hand down a final decision in about a month. It may be appealed to the State Supreme Court.

At stake for the winner is a four-year term—what's left of it—in the governor's chair. For

"I prefer to think of my crime as just a matter of getting the jump on the tax cut."

Dr. Anders' Dilemma

By Henry and Sylvia Lieferant

Copyright © 1958 by Henry Lieferant

THE STORY: Remembering his own childhood, Dr. David Anders has brought a young wife called him to the hospital to be treated for an eye infection. David has had offers from Dr. Bascomb to enter surgery, and from Dr. Cornish, to practice medicine.

CHAPTER VIII

By morning the wards were bright once more, patients expectant of a good day.

In the main hall, on the way to the elevator, David caught up with his Chief. Cornish's eyes were tired, his usual pale more marked. "I want to talk to you, Anders," he said. "The reception room's as good a place as any."

Cornish sat down on a window ledge, waved David to a chair. "Anders," he began, "something was called to my attention this morning, which makes me want to remind you that you must never feel yourself under obligation to me."

Startled, David protested. "But I am under obligation to you, sir, for your interest, for all you've taught me, for the many privileges of seeing things I wouldn't ordinarily get to see."

David's mind flew to Nancy, and all the alertness of his body seemed to go with it. Who had seen them?

"This matter with Dr. Bascomb. I've been told that he made you an offer, an attractive one, too. You'd get more out of it to start your own office than anything I'd have to offer, because I can't board you. I haven't made my choice between you, Melton and Gross by any means. It occurred to me that some sense of loyalty was holding you back. By the time I pick one of you, the job Bascomb's offered you may be filled." He reached out and put his hand on David's shoulder. "I appreciate your loyalty, Anders. There's too little of it in our profession, but my interest in you lies in seeing you find what you want to do."

For hours this conversation simmered in David's mind.

Often he spent an hour or two in the laboratory at night, when the staff had gone. Miss Brangwyn, the night supervisor, gave him the key gladly; she approved of this industrious young intern.

He didn't hear the outer door of the lab open. He saw first two white shoes, then slender ankles, then the tip of a blue cap. He lifted his head suddenly.

"Nancy! It is you—"

"Ssh!" she warned. She was in uniform. Her cheeks were flushed, her voice breathless. In her blue cape, with one corner blown back to reveal the red lining, she was a model nurse, directly off a poster. "I can see the lab door from my room," she whispered. "Something drew me to the window just when you were coming in. I had to see you. No—not here, David, please—"

when he seized her elbows and drew her closer. "Let's come away from the windows."

They went to an inner room where the blinds were drawn, she standing back to let him snap on a light.

"I have only a few minutes, David. Do you know what's being said about you in the hospital today?"

He pushed a high stool toward her. "Gossip's never interested me."

"Maybe it's not gossip, though everybody's talking. They say you are out of it with Cornish."

The light of an incubator bloomed for a few seconds, and died. "Why?"

"—and that you've definitely accepted Bascomb's offer. Did you, David?"

He said, "There'd be only one reason for my doing that, Nancy. You know what it is."

"Because you're going to marry Dr. Bascomb's daughter?"

"Why would I want to marry Rhoda?" he demanded.

Nancy had expected David to exhibit some evidence of guilt, but his immediate angry response startled her into a temporary submission. She listened while he assured her that he had made no decision or even communicated with Dr. Bascomb. He diverted her for a few minutes by telling of his conversation with Cornish, but Nancy drew him back to the subject of Rhoda.

"Do you know how many times I've seen that girl and talked with her?"

"Then you do know her?"

"Is it important to you, Nancy?"

"What could it mean to me?" she retorted stiffly. "If you were her up at midnight, and call her butler by name as if you were an intimate in her home, and fool around on the telephone in the presence of the whole emergency staff—"

"That woman again—Argyle!" He brought his fist down on the slate-topped table.

Silently, he wondered why he had called Rhoda when Social Service was the normal channel. The possibility of some hidden motive in his mind alarmed him.

"Why don't you tell me the truth?" she cried angrily.

They raised their voices, closed their ears, hurried wild stabbing accusations, unfounded and unanswered.

ner in which the AIDC has been run under Rockefeller and he also blasted Rockefeller for backing GOP opponents of some legislators in the last election. Van Dalsem was one who had a Republican opponent.

"Next time he'll be after the rest of you boys," Van Dalsem warned. "I'm tired of patting him on the back."

Van Dalsem said Rockefeller and the AIDC had taken credit for industrialization that actually was accomplished by Chambers of Commerce, the Faulstich administration and the legislature, which passed industry-financing legislation.

Van Dalsem also was the center of another fight over Ashley County Rep. N. B. Murphy's anti-gambling bill. He and Murphy exchanged some heated personal criticism before the matter was disposed of.

The House spent more than 90 minutes arguing over the Murphy bill and finally left it just as it was, with two crippling amendments still attached to it.

Van Dalsem sponsored the amendments, which Murphy said killed the bill, last Friday. Murphy offered an amendment Monday to strike one of the Van Dalsem proposals but Murphy's amendment was defeated 54-42.

For some reason, though, the House voted 56-31 to consider the Murphy amendment. It could have saved all the debate by refusing to consider it.

The House passed up a chance to dispose of the Murphy bill for good by defeating a motion to table it.

Van Dalsem also was indirectly the center of the main controversy in the Senate Monday.

On a motion by Sen. Morrell Gathright of Pine Bluff, the Senate voted to recall from the House Van Dalsem's weights and measures bill which the Senate passed Friday.

Van Dalsem said he would fight the recall effort which he called "an attempt to gut my bill."

The House will have to agree to return the bill to the Senate and Van Dalsem said he is sure he has enough support to keep it from happening. The Senate recall vote is not binding on the House, which can send the bill to the governor.

Gathright said the bill had some bugs in it that the Senate didn't discuss Friday. "It will outlaw some thing that I see no reason to outlaw," Gathright said.

Basically, the Van Dalsem bill sets up a state force to check weighing and measuring devices for accuracy and to provide a check for honest weight of certain packaged items of merchandise.

Gathright said the bill also provides that certain commodities may be sold in only set units, such as one-fourth or one-half pound weights, or in multiples of pounds.

Gathright said this means merchants will be unable to sell such items as evaporated milk, whipped cream or cottage cheese packaged in off weights, or oysters which are sold by the pint.

"As long as a package says it contains 6 of a pound and actually contains that weight, why shouldn't a merchant be allowed to sell it?" Gathright asked.

The House spent most of a 4½-hour session, longest of this term, on the Rockefeller and gambling arguments.

In other areas, it defeated Ouachita County Rep. David Pryor's County purchasing act bill by a 49-39 vote and passed Sevier County Rep. George Davis' bill to set up Rural Development Authorities to do for rural areas part of the things urban renewal agencies do for cities.

House Parliamentarian Neil Bohlinger ruled that a proposed soft drink tax bill can pass with 51 votes, although the courts may hold it illegal.

The key in Bohlinger's ruling was whether the courts will consider vocational-technical schools as "common education."

If they do, the bill can pass with 51 votes, since 10 per cent of the tax revenue is allocated to the Public School Fund for vocational-technical schools, Bohlinger said. If the courts rule otherwise, he said, the bill will need 67 votes to pass.

The Senate spent most of Monday's session passing routine appropriations bills.

Sen. Robert Harvey of Swifton introduced a bill Monday calling for a two-year study of highway user taxes with an eye toward adjusting these in the 1965 Legislature.

Harvey also introduced a bill to provide state road engineering aid to counties.

Rep. William Sanson of Faulkner County introduced a House bill to permit the Children's Colony at Conway to issue revenue bonds for construction of new facilities, retiring the bonds with charges to be assessed for care of children whose parents can afford to pay.

Hot Spring County Rep. Bill Tucker introduced a bill to set a men recruited by his firm—double Check Corp., of Miami—to fly for anti-Castro forces apparently had been killed.

The lawyer, Alex E. Carlson, said their cargo plane had crashed in the Caribbean.

He identified the four, all from the Birmingham area, as: Riley W. Shamburger, 36, pilot; Thomas Willard Ray, co-pilot; Leo F. Baker, 35, engineer, and Wade Carroll Gray, 33, radioman.

"These men knew what they were getting into," Carlson said. "It was a calculated risk—if they came back they had a nice nest egg."

Their families, he said, would receive "substantial benefits as part of the contract."

Carlson identified the plane as a C46 and said the four reported one of their engines had gone out and they were losing altitude.

search, he said, turned up wreckage but no bodies.

The Washington Post said these apparently were the four men Dirksen was referring to. The paper said a friend of one of the lost fliers sent to Dirksen about six weeks ago a clipping of the account from the Birmingham News.

Another version of the case was reported in a recent issue of the U.S. News and World Report.

In an interview, Gonzalo Herro, former pilot for Cubana Airlines who was operation officer of the invaders' B26 squadron, gave a description of how four Americans—whom he did not name—died in the hectic hours of the invasion.

"On the last day of the battle, our pilots were so exhausted that some American instructors volunteered to fly into combat. They didn't have to do that. It wasn't their job. But they volunteered."

"Four went. None came back." Dirksen said details of his investigation, including names of the four fliers, will be made public, perhaps this week.

The controversy over the present Cuban situation continued to sputter.

The Castro government's former minimum wage of 50 cents an hour for women. The minimum now is $1.25 a day. Arkansas has no minimum wage law for men.

Tucker said he wasn't concerned about men because they all now get more than 50 cents an hour.

Tucker's bill would apply only to business with eight or more female employees.

New Orleans City That Care Forgot

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Almost anywhere else it would be sheer lunacy. But New Orleans calls it Mardi Gras and becomes the "city that care forgot."

Half a million people—maybe more—throw away their inhibitions today for one big, frenzied blowout.

Cool weather and scattered showers were forecast, but it would take a downpour to drive the happy crowds off the streets.

Between sunset and sundown masking is the rule—this year by order of Mayor Victor Schiro. The variety of costumes is endless.

The masked revelers cavort through the city as costumes and makeup turn sedate businessmen into creatures from outer space, kids into clowns, women into harem girls.

Whole families dress in monkey suits, some draped in Spanish moss.

Parades are scheduled throughout the day and into the night, starting with the zany antics of Zulu, the Negro Carnival deity.

Mardi Gras ends officially when the lower clock in historic St. Louis Cathedral strikes midnight and Rex, the king of Carnival, and Comus, the oldest Carnival deity, drink a solemn champagne toast.

Then begin the solemn penitential 40 days of Lent.

mal denial that its MIGs fired on the U.S. shrimp boat last week was delivered to the State Department late Monday by Czech Ambassador Miloslav Ruzick.

It said the planes were searching for two small boats stolen from a fishing cooperative when they spotted the shrimp boat.

The MIGs, said the Cuban note, approached the shrimp boat but flew away without firing a shot.

The United States rejected the explanation as propaganda.

U.S. Marine pilots sweeping out to check on the MIGs which had been located on radar said they saw the Cuban MIGs fire rockets which came within 40 yards of the shrimp boat, the Ala.

A State Department spokesman said the Cuban note also contained "how trumped-up charges" of attacks on Cuban fishing vessels

Many people would like to believe this, if only they could be sure in their own minds.

Arkadelphia Building Burns
ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) - A building and equipment owned by Southmost Granaries, Inc., were destroyed by fire here Monday. Manager Boyd Kennedy estimated the loss at $10,000. It was covered by insurance. The storehouse was empty, he said, though sometimes it holds 6,000 bales of cotton. He said the feed manufacturing building was undamaged.

HAVANA (A) - Another ransom payment - 2,500 tons of baby food worth an estimated $1.5 million - was delivered Monday by the freighter Priamus for liberation of the Bay of Pigs invaders. It was the fourth big installment payment for the freedom of the 1,113 prisoners.

Public Not Aroused Over a Tax Cut
By SA MDAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) - The tax cut proposal's failure to arouse the expected public enthusiasm is reported by various pulse takers. A tax cut is supposed to be the most popular of political acts. Public reaction this time has brought forth many explanations.

One is that linking tax cuts and federal deficits to economic growth rates has made the whole thing too academic for most people to grasp. But President Kennedy says his proposal is far from academic.

He tells a symposium sponsored by the American Bankers Association that "pushing our economy to grow at the rate of 4 per cent when of 3 per cent" would work out over the next 10 years to an increase of "55,000 more in income for every family."

The ordinary fellow can understand $5,000 all right. He may be a little hazy as to how he can be sure that getting something called the Gross National Product to increase by 4 per cent a year instead of 3 is going to mean that he will get an extra $500 a year, instead of some other fellow getting $1,000. This is the educational problem that the President and his advisers face.

Another reason many persons haven't gone overboard for the tax cutting plan could be that after figuring up everything else involved they can't see how they'll be ahead much if any at the end of the year. Some contend that the proposed cut in deductions would take away much of the benefit from any lowering of federal income tax rates.

Others point out that other taxes, fees, rates, at all levels of government, are going up at the same time. When they've paid everything from Social Security to property to sales taxes to auto license fees, their disposable income may be about the same size. They wonder just how much of a boost they personally can give to the economic growth rate.

Many ordinary fellows can't grasp how going further into debt is going to make the economy grow, or how it can do anything but postpone the time the piper must be paid.

The new economic school rejects this fear as outdated. It holds that the tax cuts and at increased government spending between them will spur business in general. This will get the GNP - the total dollar value of all goods and services produced in the nation - to move ahead by the 4 per cent the President is aiming at and which he says over 10 years would add $210 billion more to wages and $110 billion to profits. And if it did, the U.S. Treasury could take in $80 billion more in taxes.

Russia Is Challenged to Explain

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
GENEVA (AP) - The chief American disarmament negotiator challenged the Soviet Union today to explain what it means by on-site inspection for a nuclear test ban treaty.

U.S. Delegate William C. Foster told the 17-nation disarmament conference the Soviet offer of two or three inspections per year is meaningless unless the inspection procedure is spelled out.

"The Soviet position is completely unknown to us except for two numbers which stand stark and alone in the middle of a featureless desert," Foster declared. "And even those numbers may be

Duke Appears to Be Closing on Cincinnati

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer
To put it in race track terminology the Cincinnati Bearcats have rounded into the stretch with a good lead, but the Duke Blue Devils are closing fast.

The Bearcats, two-time national champions, again top the weekly Associated Press college basketball poll, but their lead has been cut to 18 points by the second-place Blue Devils.

The poll, announced Monday and based on games through last Saturday, marked the 14th straight week the Bearcats have been No. 1.

But this time they polled only 30 first-place votes from the AP panel of 42 sportswriters and broadcasters for a total of 396 points. Duke, which now has the longest current major winning streak, 15, collected 10 firsts and 378 points over-all. Cincinnati had 402 and Duke 321 points the previous week.

Harness Race Is Run on Icy Field

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"You would think," a man said, flicking snow off his overcoat collar, "that the 33,730 others at Yonkers Monday

Next to him, at the ice-covered rail of Yonkers Raceway for the earliest opening night in New York State harness racing history, his wife snuggled into her fur coat and whined: "You told me we'd be all alone out here tonight, and we can't even get a seat."

They weren't alone. There were 28,730 others at onkers Monday night, where the track was listed as fast, the temperature was 30 degrees and a light snow was falling.

A total of $1,975,656 went through the mutuel windows for the nine races, which was the object of the exercise. The state moved up the opening date this year to raise some money, presumably on the theory that horse players will put up with anything voluntarily that horses will when driven.

The bettors had bid farewell to the trotters last Nov. 30 with the first $3 million night in harness history.

They gathered early to welcome them back.

In the 19th-century open grandstand, there was the standard race track crowd, neatly dressed couples, seedy-looking fellows who needed a shave clutching rolls of $10 bills and even a couple of "stopper" speaking through the slush looking for winning tickets that might have been discarded in error.

In the glass-enclosed, heated clubhouse, sleek women in evening gowns cut down to here, table-hopped, and chattered about the snow drifting against the glass. "We left Florida yesterday," one said.

The talk was mostly about horses—and the weather.

The drivers were clad in Air Force jackets and paratrooper pants. Twin clouds of white steam sprayed from the nostrils of the horses as they paraded to the post.

The quality of the racing surprised the rail-leaners.

"I expected to see a lot of milk wagons parked outside," one man said, "and the horses that pull them out on the track."

But Pioneer Pick, the favorite in the feature, finished fifth.

"It was sure a short winter," a man said.

Nashville Ousted in State Play

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Yellville ran its victory string to 39 and defending champion Sparkman stayed in the running as the Class A and B boys state basketball tournaments opened here Monday.

Today's action:

In Class A, Manila meets Judsonia, Tuckerman plays Clarksburg, and Emerson and Fuller play. In Class B, Woodlawn-Rison tangles with Lake Hamilton, Amity tries Swift and Cedarville goes against Hartford.

Monday's results showed Yellville taking victory No. 39 from Hickory Ridge, 78-54; Sparkman topping Marmaduke 66-52, and Biggers-Reyno beating Hartman 63-57 in Class B. Class A games showed Sheridan over Nashville 45-43, Green Forest over Mount Ida 58-28 and Monticello over DeWitt 58-55.

Sparkman, the defending Class B champion, had little trouble rolling past Marmaduke. Hubert Langley hit 22 points for Sparkman, Joe Dickinson got 17 for Marmaduke.

Elliot McVay pumped in 30 points to pace Yellville past Hickory Ridge, which was led by Johnny Lemke with 12 points.

Hartman scrambled within five points by halftime and pulled even in the third quarter, but never took the lead away from Biggers-Reyno. James Parrish's 15 points kept B-R in front, through Mike Jacobs hit 19 for Hartman.

The early gunning of Jim Stafford, who finished with 20 points, pushed Green Forest to a 24-11 halftime lead, which grew through the second two quarters. Bruce McConnell got 10 points for Mount Ida.

A field goal and free throw in the last minute by Bobby Anderson squeezed Sheridan ahead of Nashville. The Yellow Jacks trailed by a point before Anderson's clutch shots. He finished with 18, second in scoring to teammate Ronnie Gillis, who got 18. George Jones netted 15 for Nashville.

Monticello led handily through the first half against DeWitt, but Eddie Fitzhugh got hot in the second half and trimmed the Monticello lead. Fitzhugh got 14 points, but DeWitt's rally fell short. Kelton Busby topped Monticello with 22 points.

Bradds Makes Big 10 Fans Love Basketball

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A stand-in who became a star, Gary Bradds is playing to rave notices to very discriminating audiences—Big Ten conference basketball fans.

The 6-foot-8 junior who understudied the celebrated Jerry Lucas last season is the spotlighted performer for Ohio State's Buckeyes now, and he is carrying off the role superbly.

Bradds put on a typical show Monday night, netting 13 of Ohio State's last 16 points as the Buckeyes topped Northwestern 50-45 on the Wildcats' floor. The victory was a clutch one, keeping Ohio State tied for the Big Ten lead with Illinois.

The Illini shook loose in the closing moments and won at Minnesota 81-70, leaving the Gophers with only a mathematical chance to tie for the conference championship. Indiana's hopes also were dashed in a 102-96 loss at Wisconsin. Ohio State and Illinois are 9-2 with three games left, Indiana is 7-4 and Minnesota 7-5.

Mississippi State nailed down no less than a share of the Southeastern Conference crown, posting a 78-67 victory at Tulane, while Georgia Tech took sole possession of second place by winning at home against Florida, 89-69. Auburn dropped to third in a 55-47 setback at Tennessee.

The Big Eight race loosened up a bit, with Colorado whipping Iowa State 72-59 and Nebraska upending Oklahoma State 49-48 for its first conference victory of the season.

Bowling Green assured itself of at least a tie for the Mid-American championship in a high-scoring romp at home, 114-86 over Marshall.

Arizona State, the Western Athletic Conference champion, struggled to its 47th home floor victory in a row, 73-70 over Creighton, although Art Becker went out in the opening half with an ankle sprain and Joe Caldwell fouled out with 6 minutes to play.

Other results — Marquette beat St. Louis 69-58 in a match between two clubs bound for the National Invitation Tournament; Michigan 78, Iowa 70; Kentucky 80, Alabama 63; Louisiana State 80, Mississippi 61; Vanderbilt 82; Georgia 64; Oklahoma City 8, West Texas State 84; Florida State 80, Tampa 58; Villanova 71, West Chester 59.

Filmland to Begin Dizzy Oscar Show

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood begins its annual dizzy Oscar carnival today by announcing the 1962 Academy Award nominations.

Reflecting the global aspect of movie making, it looks as if this year's awards will be the most international yet.

One Italian picture, "Divorce, Italian Style," is rated a good chance to cop a best picture nomination and also a best actor nomination for star, Marcello Mastroianni. Mastroianni doesn't speak English.

"The Longest Day," Darryl F. Zanuck's personal movie invasion of Normandy, is a strong candidate also. It is the first multiple language movie wherein the German, French, English and American soldiers speak lines in their native tongues.

There also could be a chance of a deceased playwright who never wrote a word for the movies being nominated for best screen play.

Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," is a favorite for a best picture nomination. Its

Taxes Takes Bite Out of Reduction

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rising state, local and Social Security taxes may nibble away a large chunk — possibly half — of President Kennedy's proposed tax cuts by the time they would take effect.

Much of the competition is expected to involve such movies as "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Days of Wine and Roses," "The Music Man," "Lawrence of Arabia" and "The Manchurian Candidate," among others.

For the best actor award the pre-nomination predictions are Gregory (Mockingbird) Peck, Jack (Wine and Roses) Lemmon, Jason (Long Day's Journey) Robards Jr., Robert (Music Man) Preston, Peter (Lawrence of Arabia) O'Toole and Mastoianni.

For top actress there will be two old-timers favored to win nominations — Katharine Hepburn as the tormented, dope-addicted mother of O'Neill's play and Bette Davis as the eccentric former child star in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?"

But they will have tough competition, if the oddsmakers are right, from such younger stars as Anne Bancroft in "The Miracle Worker," Geraldine Page in "Sweet Bird of Yough" and Lee Remick, the alcoholic wife in "Days of Wine and Roses."

Winners will be named at the traditional award ceremonies April 8.

Rockefeller Ouster Meets Opposition

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—At least three Chamber of Commerce groups and one legislature delegation have come out against any attempt to remove Winthrop Rockefeller as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

Protests were registered by the Chambers of Commerce of Morrilton, Paris and Russellville.

The Morrilton chamber sent a letter to Gov. Orval E. Faubus saying the group could see no connection between Rockefeller's political position and his ability to bring jobs to the people of Arkansas.

All three members of the Craighead County delegation in the legislature said that they were in favor of retaining Rockefeller. Sen. Doug Bradley of Jonesboro and Craighead County Reps. Norman Wimpy and Roscoe Brown announced their feelings over the weekend.

Rockefeller has been under fire from Rep.aul Van Dalsem and other members of the Arkansas House because of his activities in the Republican Party.

billion, three-year tax reduction.

1. Part of the taxpayers' savings would be picked up automatically by the 19 states whose taxpayers can deduct federal income tax from their taxable income. In these issues a cut in federal taxes means more income would be subject to state tax.

In 13 states whose tax systems are tied to the federal system, the laws require that citizens compute their taxable income on about the same basis as they do the federal income tax. The revenue-boosting reforms which Kennedy has — including curtailed personal deductions—would become part of the state systems, unless the state s are changed. The federal rate cut would not necessarily be carried over unless the states are into the state systems so state liability would be increased.

With most on the 47 state legislatures meeting this year considering tax increases totaling perhaps $2.5 billion, much of the $3.2 billion reduction envisaged in the Kennedy program for 1964 would be wiped out.

Not all the legislatures are expected to raise taxes but it's true that a four-year cycle of such action has developed, and 1963 is the year for it. Thirty-three states raised taxes since 1950.

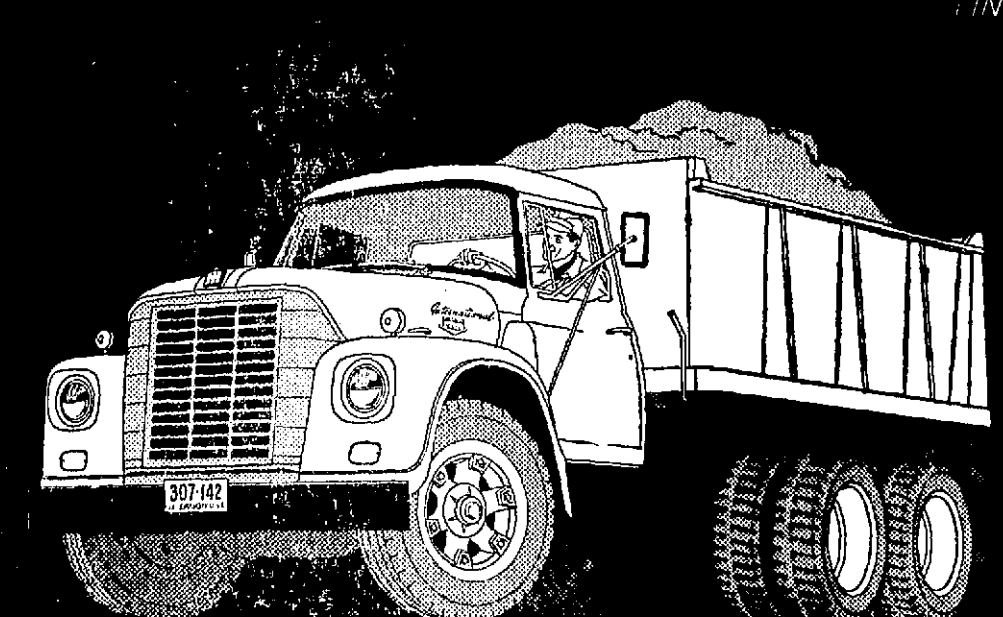

Three other factors will be working, tax experts report, to dilute the income-boosting, investment-stimulating and job-creating benefits of Kennedy's net $10.
